

Deborah Stoner is a trauma counselor with a private practice in Emmaus. She is married and lives with her husband, two cats, and a therapy dog named Bodhi. Bodhi helps her clients feel more at ease and comforts them during therapy sessions. She loves history, genealogy research, reading, traveling, and early Mustangs. She takes fine art and sewing lessons and loves learning new things including languages. She has 37 years of experience in genealogy research. She also volunteered at the Lacey Davis Foundation which was dedicated to finding the families of WWII military veterans who died in Europe - "To honor their service, To honor their families".
